STATE LIQUOR CHIEF RESIGNS; SCOBELL NAMED

Col. John A. Hughes Quits As Director of Year-Old System

SENATE O. K. ON SCOBELL IS ASKED

White's Appointment Expected To Meet Davy's Approval

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Dec. 26.—Col. John A. Hughes today announced his long-expected resignation as director of the year-old state liquor monopoly system.

His resignation, one year and two days after his appointment as director, immediately raised the possibility of a court fight over his successor.

Scobell Is Successor

Joseph H. Scobell, of Cleveland, assistant director, was named by Gov. George White to succeed Hughes, the former marine officer who has lived up to his name "Johnnie the Hard" in administration of the infant liquor department.

The governor announced he would ask senate confirmation for Scobell. Should the request be granted, Gov. E. L. Martin I. Davy would be stopped temporarily, from placing his own man in the position, should he desire to do so. There have been some reports, however, that Davy desired to place Scobell in the office from which he months ago said he intended to fire Hughes.

Hughes did not disclose his future intentions, other than to say he planned a fishing trip to Florida immediately after he yields his office.

The governor said he would send Scobell's name to the senate and ask confirmation between the time the 81st general assembly convenes Jan. 7, and the time Davy is inaugurated Jan. 14.

Vary On Authority

He takes the position, the governor said, that under the liquor act, the director cannot be removed except for cause; that, in effect, his appointment is for life. Others, however, take the position that since the law provides no method for removal of a director, the term is at the "pleasure of the governor" and he may be removed by the executive at any time.

Should the senate approve Scobell's appointment and Davy object to him, a court test of the law is probable. There have been some reports, however, that Davy was favorable to Scobell.

If the senate fails to act in the week before Davy is inaugurated, Davy would withdraw Scobell's name and appoint anyone he pleased.

Hughes, who was in the governor's office when his resignation was announced, said he believed "Ohio's system of liquor control is the best of any in the nation but that it needed four or five amendments very badly."

Hope For Assembly Action

He expressed confidence the next legislature will make those amendments, which would give the liquor department a percentage of the

U. S. SWEEP BY FRIGID BLAST

Sagging Temperatures Follow Trail Of St. Nicholas

Winter, already firmly entrenched in many sections, took a firmer grip on many parts of the United States today.

A cold blast from the far north overspread the midwest and north central states, and was due to envelop the east by tonight.

Sagging temperatures followed the trail of St. Nicholas, with 22 below zero at Williston, N. D., Christmas day—the coldest spot in the United States, while a minus 44 was reported from Dawson, Canada. The far northwest reported a blizzard raging in the Cascade mountains.

Although the east, generally speaking, and the south enjoyed moderate temperatures on Christmas, there were snow flurries in New England, and parts of upper New York state were blanketed with a covering of two inches of snow.

There was a light fall of snow in Chicago, Iowa and Wisconsin also reported snow, with sagging temperatures. There was a heavy snow in northern Pennsylvania. By midnight the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis reported that the temperature had dropped to 10 below zero, and that the cold snap was hampering both train and highway transportation.

The cold wave, the weather man said, will dip down as far south as the northern part of Florida by tonight.

Temperatures tumbled in Kansas and Missouri as the mercury dropped 19 degrees in six hours in Kansas City from a high of 38. Fair weather was forecast to accompany the frigid temperatures.

Willow Grove Unit Will Meet Friday

Willow Grove grange will meet Friday evening at the grange hall. The public is invited to attend the program.

Rev. C. F. Bailey, pastor of the First Friends church, will give the main talk. Other numbers on the program will be: Piano solo, Miss Lois Myers; vocal duet, Esther and Twila Bachy; musical selections, the Cameron brothers; song and dance, "Minuties," Irene Schmid, Hilda Stasane, Daniel Schmid and Virgil Burson. The roll call response will be, "My Favorite Quotation."

SPECIAL PANEL OF 48 CALLED IN LINDY CASE

27 Men, 21 Women Named As Jury Prospects In Hauptmann Trial

POSSIBILITY OF DELAY LOOMING

Challenges, Dismissals Expected To Exhaust Panel

BY JAMES V. LAWRENCE, Associated Press Staff Writer.
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Dec. 26.—In Hunterdon county's century old court house a special panel of 48 prospective jurors—27 men and 21 women—was drawn today for the forthcoming trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, on Jan. 2.

May Not Be Enough
The panel was selected at the direction of County Judge Adam O. Robbins from the general panel list of 150 names, but it was considered unlikely that the panel of 48 would be sufficient for the selection of the jury because of the expected challenges and dismissals by both prosecution and defense.

Judge Robbins, who will preside with Justice Thomas A. Trenchard at the trial next week, occupied the bench. Spectators attended the drawing. Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck appeared for the state and Hauptmann, the Lindbergh kidnap-slaying suspect, was represented by C. Lloyd Fisher and Egert Rosecrans, associate defense attorneys.

The prospective takersmen were drawn from the group which received the booklet on a fictitious kidnap-murder case in which an acquittal occurred because "the aviator's baby was never kidnapped or murdered."

New Panel Possible

Both state and defense attorneys plan conferences later in the day to determine whether to ask for an entire new panel of 150 because of the booklet incident and the possibility that it may have influenced some of the jurors.

Defense Counsel Fisher wired Justice Trenchard before the jury drawing asking the jurist to call a general conference of prosecution and defense counsel at his Trenton chambers later in the day so that the booklet incident and the possibility of a new panel might be discussed. No reply has yet been received from Trenchard, Fisher said.

The drawing of a new panel would defer the opening of the trial from 30 to 40 days. Judge Robbins said, expressing the belief Trenchard would not order one drawn.

County Treasurer Will Sell Coupons

It was understood today that collection of the bracketed sales tax from the consumer may have to be delayed until after the date of Jan. 14, tentatively set by the state tax commission when the collection would begin.

The sales tax coupons will be sold in Columbiana county only by County Treasurer John C. Litty. To date no coupons have been received.

ARRANGE FOR COMEDY PLAY

Miss Theo Martin Will Direct Community Production Here

A cast of 100 local entertainers will join to present "Crazy Politics," billed as something new in comedy plays, in the high school auditorium Thursday and Friday, Jan. 9-10, under auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The comedy, especially written for community presentation, will star prominent local actors adapted to drama, singing and dancing. The setting is a political one in a small town of "Centerville."

A dance chorus of 25 will be chosen from a group of high school girls. Prominent business men and women of the city will fill the leading roles. It is reported by Miss Theo Martin who is now in Salem arranging for the production. The play has been successfully presented throughout the county, she reports.

Auto Driver Is Fined $100, Costs

Emery Burson, residing about six miles south of town, was arrested at 9 a. m. Sunday by Patrolman Ed Piller on a charge of driving while intoxicated. When arraigned before Mayor Norman Phillips this morning, he was fined $100 and costs.

Charles Mohr, of Salem, was arrested on a reckless driving charge by Police Ralph N. Steffer on Monday.

Twins Abandoned on Doorstep

Just as Santa Claus was about ready to come, fate played a sad trick on these twin baby girls, being held by Nurse Delia Gerke in a Cincinnati hospital. Apparently unable to provide for the girls, whose names were given as Mary and Martha, their mother left them on a doctor's doorstep in the city.

Christmas Marriage Licenses Go To Six At Lisbon Monday

Six Christmas marriage licenses were issued at Lisbon Monday by Probate Judge H. W. Hammond, as against a record of five for the same period last year. Those who secured licenses were:

Paul Hildebrand, teacher, Lisbon, and Miss Virginia Caldwell, student, Lisbon.
Arthur H. White, service station manager, Salem, and Margaret L. Limestone, stenographer, Salem.
Raymond H. Booth, Lisbon, clerk, and Miss Doris Johnson, Lisbon.

Charles W. Knepper, publisher, Carnegie, Pa., and Dorothy W. Knepper, East Liverpool, millworker, East Liverpool, and Evelyn Bowdler, East Liverpool.

James T. Buchanan, coal miner, East Liverpool and Anna M. Morgan, East Liverpool, formerly of Shippingport, Pa.

COUPLE MARRIED CHRISTMAS DAY

Miss Doris Johnson, Raymond H. Booth Wedded By Rev. F. C. Lake

LISBON, Dec. 26.—Miss Doris Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Johnson, North Market st., and Raymond H. Booth, of here, formerly of East Palestine, were married by Rev. F. C. Lake at the home of the bride's parents Christmas afternoon. Mrs. Booth has been employed as a school teacher here, while Mr. Booth has been in charge of the commodities division of the county relief office. They will reside here.

The vested choir of the Christian church, under the direction of Arthur Wise, will feature the evening service at the Fredericktown Christian church Sunday evening.

Youths Sing Carols

Christmas carols were sung by the younger members of the Presbyterian church before the presbytery of a number of shut-ins Christmas eve. Twelve automobiles transported the group of singers about the town. The first song service was at North Market st. at midnight.

Local members of Salem Commandery, Knights' Temple went to Salem at 11:30 o'clock Christmas morning to participate in the annual noon Christmas service. The group was headed by Past Commander James M. Thuton.

Quota To Entertain Junior High Girls

The Salem Quota club is sponsoring a Christmas dinner party to be held at the Mansion tea house, S. Lincoln ave., at 6 p. m. Thursday, at which each member will entertain a Junior High school girl.

Proceeding the dinner the girls will be entertained at the matinee showing of "Kid Millions" at the State theatre, through the courtesy of the Walken Bros.

This holiday party has been planned by the "Losers" in an attendance contest recently held by the club. The "Winners" were captained by Miss Tamar Thumm and the "Losers" by Mrs. A. Hansell.

TRAGEDY WALKS U. S.; 163 DEATHS OVER HOLIDAY

Many Fatalities Caused By Heavy Christmas Traffic

FIRES HELP SWELL CASUALTY TOTAL

Gunplay and Drownings Are Listed Among Other Causes

(By Associated Press)
Grim tragedy stalked about the North American continent Christmas to bring death to at least 163 persons.

A train wreck near Hamilton, Ont., resulted in the loss of at least 15 lives while fires, motor car accidents, drownings, suicides and other tragedies turned the day from joy to sorrow for scores of families throughout the United States.

As is usual on holidays the heavy traffic on highways caused the most fatalities, at least 115 of the dead perishing in motor mishaps.

Toll By States

The auto death toll by states showed:
Indiana 3; Pennsylvania 6; Missouri 13; North Carolina 3; Louisiana 5; New York 5; New Jersey 2; Ohio 6; Arkansas 10 (since Sunday); Michigan 14 (since Sunday); Texas 5; Washington State 7; Idaho 3; Utah 2; Oklahoma 4; Georgia 3; California 14; Illinois 2; Massachusetts 2; and one each in Florida, Alabama, Kansas, Maine, Connecticut and Oregon.

Fires in Missouri and other sections helped considerably to swell the death toll. A mother and her three children perished in flames at Sedalia, Mo. Another mother and her three children were burned to death at Joplin, Mo. Chicago counted two dead in fires. A 4-year-old girl was burned fatally at San Diego, Calif., and a farmer perished in the same manner near Madison, Minn. At Albany, N. Y., a woman was asphyxiated while preparing her Christmas breakfast, and an Albany man was burned to death in his shack.

Blaze Takes 4 Lives

A blaze in New York City which started from a short circuit in a Christmas tree lighting system caused injuries to four persons. Three were hurt in an explosion.

RELIEF FOODS ARE RECEIVED

Distribution of Commodities In County Is Started Monday

Commodities were distributed from all relief stations in the county Monday. Stock was delivered at the commodity warehouse at Lisbon and trucks were engaged in delivering the merchandise.

The first shipment to be received was 17,000 pounds of fresh wheat, and then followed shipments of 8,600 pounds of rice and 5,800 pounds of sugar.

The case load in Columbiana county stands at 4,159 which includes 3,500 families besides 500 individuals. Many of the families on relief range from three to five persons, and, according to the county relief office records, shows that over 20,000 people in the county are participating in the relief program.

Hill Billy Singer Croons to Jailmates

LISBON, Dec. 26.—Jack Hite, guitar player and "hill billy" singer, has been in the village jail here since Monday night when he was arrested by police on an affidavit filed by Garland Zikle of Newell, W. Va., whose automobile was damaged by a truck being driven by Hite.

Dr. Gruber Renamed To Infirmary Post

County commissioners opened two bids for medical services at the county home, effective Jan. 1. The award went to Dr. James Gruber, Lisbon, on his bid of $1,200 for service and medicine. A proposal for the same service was submitted by Dr. T. A. Burneson at $1,350. Dr. Gruber has been awarded this service contract for several years.

Workmen Rushing Courthouse Repairs

LISBON, Dec. 26.—Approximately 80 workmen were employed on the courthouse reconstruction project today. The majority included skilled mechanics.

Effort is being made to have as much of the project completed as possible before the dedication of the building next Monday.

SCORE INJURED AS EXPRESS SMASHES EXCURSION TRAIN

Detroit to Toronto Express Tears Into Back End of Excursion On Siding At Dundas, 7 Miles From Hamilton

FIVE WOMEN AMONG VICTIMS

Open Switch Is Blamed for Holiday Tragedy; Wreckage Searched For More Bodies; Investigation Is Launched

(By Associated Press)
HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 26.—The splintered wreckage of a Christmas excursion train was searched today for additional victims as officials of the Canadian national railways opened an investigation of a collision last night which took at least 15 lives.

More than a score of persons were injured, some critically, when the Detroit to Toronto express tore into the rear of the stationary excursion train on a siding at Dundas, seven miles from Hamilton.

Five women were among the mangled victims of the disaster whose bodies have been recovered but as yet are unidentified. Additional deaths were feared.

Open Switch Blamed

Officials of the railway said the cause of the accident apparently was an open switch and promised an intensive inquiry.

Laden with merry holiday travelers, the excursion train was bound from London, Ont., to Toronto. Most of the victims, it was reported, were Canadians, were residents of those two cities.

Two wooden cars at the rear of the excursion train, which had been switched onto a siding because of a "hot box," were crushed and many passengers, screaming in agony, were pinned for hours beneath the wreckage.

The alertness and quick thinking of Engineer R. Barreil of the speeding train from Detroit, No. 16, was credited by railway officials with having averted an even greater tragedy.

Seeing no hope of preventing the locomotive from piling into the rear of the special train, Burreil ordered it cut loose from the coaches behind and prevented them from telescoping.

In contrast to the terrific crash when the giant engine struck the wooden coaches, there was only a slight jolt when the express cars rolled up to the wreckage.

Hero of Wreck
Hailed as a hero of the disaster was W. C. Rice of Toronto. Although badly injured, Rice, a passenger removed six passengers from the splintered coaches before collapsing.

Special trains, buses and ambulances were pressed into service to bring the dead and injured to Hamilton.

"I can't for the life of me see how anyone could have been in those coaches and lived," said Douglas Mackie, a survivor. "It was simply horrible. The screams of the injured were inter-mixed with the confused shouting of those

C. W. Heim, president of the local county board, will attend this session with Lawrence H. Copeland of Millport, alternate representative.

Only A Rumor

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 26.—Beautiful afternoon, marvelous race track, magnificent, staunch and sleepy old mountains in the background. (Sounds like Graham speaking.) It is all of that. And some of the coyotes that I was persuaded to make a small wager on are as staunch and sleepy as the mountains.

Actors and actresses were thick here yesterday, but they might just as well have been bankers as far as being noticed. Female screen stars are just some more women—Madame and Senor Horse is king; Hollywood might just as well be Skiatook, Okla. The curry comb has replaced the lip rouge; even Garbo would have to ride Twenty Grand to get a look in.

It was the old eaters' day and the suckers and its proof positive that there is plenty of money to feed and clothe everybody. It's only a rumor that everybody has been taxed to death.

County CCC Quota Near As 38 Enroll

Although a quota of 43 has been set for Columbiana county for registration and examination in CCC camp work for January, Assistant County Relief Director J. E. Johnson today said that already 38 applicants had been listed.

All registrations are to be made at the Lisbon court house with the exception of those residing in the Wellsville district. Young men at that territory will register Dec. 27 at Wellsville city building.

PUGNACITY AMONG BUREAUCRATS

Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the national emergency council, and Hugh S. Johnson, former administrator of the national recovery administration, are having a fight. Perhaps they still are having the same fight. It doesn't matter.

Denuded of their titles, here are two capable men. They would be able to make their way in almost any kind of a world. Neither needed President Roosevelt's new deal to make him famous, though both have gained more fame as political administrators than they could have gained as private citizens.

It's common knowledge they didn't get along when Gen. Johnson was NRA administrator and Mr. Richberg was NRA's No. 1 lawyer. They fought frequently and bitterly. Gen. Johnson, it is said, almost flew out the window in a huff several times. Finally, arrangements were made for him to leave gracefully.

Mr. Richberg thereupon moved into top position in NRA, but the top in his case wasn't so high as the top reached by Gen. Johnson. President Roosevelt had discovered danger in letting matters of importance get too far away from the White House, apparently. Observers say the President is the actual as well as the nominal head of NRA these days.

Gen. Johnson and Mr. Richberg are still fighting. No one cares what the fight is about, and no one cares much how long it lasts. The fate of the United States may be at stake, but that's not likely. As far as the people are concerned, two bureaucrats, albeit big ones, merely proved they couldn't get along with each other.

Christmas is over now. Santa Claus didn't bring some things which would have been received gratefully. There was an important omission on President Roosevelt's list. He will have to struggle through another year at least without men big enough to do some of the big jobs he hasn't time to handle himself. Lots of men are willing to try, but sooner or later most of them start bickering with each other over the proper width of red tape.

THE POLITICAL AMENITIES

The era of good feeling between organized business and the Roosevelt administration has been subsiding, aided materially by the way the government received the resolutions of the joint conference on business recovery. This White Sulphur Springs convocation seems to have been a turning point.

Those who attended it had come together to break a truce, not to continue one. They were talked out of their original purpose by certain gentlemen who believe in using honey instead of vinegar to catch flies. Finally, they produced resolutions which seemed to them moderate and sensible, at least in contrast to what they had in mind originally.

These resolutions were sent off to Washington, where a courteous reception had been expected. But there was no courtesy. There was not even a reception, except certain stinging rebukes. Several of the more aggressive new dealers were openly derisive. President Roosevelt himself made it known he considered the resolutions representing probably 90 percent of the country's industrial employers merely another bundle of papers which he would read when he had time.

The result, of course, is a strained situation. Tragically, it need never have happened. More tragically, it probably was accidental, the result of a deplorable lack of the political amenities in Washington. The manufacturers' conference had done its part by being moderate in its proposals. The government failed to do its part.

Right or wrong, any conference of United States citizens submitting constructive resolutions to the government is entitled to respect. In this case, the government had invited closer cooperation. Despite an inclination to show offense at what it considered betrayal of the invitation, the conference at White Sulphur Springs followed a conciliatory policy. It isn't hard to imagine that conciliation will not come so easily the next time.

A government which irritates, even though accidentally, the citizens whose understanding and cooperation it needs is making work for itself. It should be possible for men of sound principle to disagree with each other without resorting to insults.

THE STARS SAY

For Thursday, December 27

Affairs of a surprising, intriguing or mysterious nature are quite likely to mark this day, having an intimate and far-reaching influence on the romantic, domestic, social or spiritual concerns of life. And while there may be some sort of unexpected upheaval, yet there are many tokens of happiness, gratification and uplift, as well as augury of financial advancement and favors from those in important places.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of outstanding events and experiences in the realm of the mystical and mysterious as well as of happy occurrences in domestic, social, cultural or romantic affections.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many advanced cultural or spiritual graces, and aspirations. It is liable to have high ideals and hopes for its fellowman.

Notable nativity: Dr. Pasteur, chemist.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—Promoters as well as fight fans are increasingly puzzled over the status of Max Baer. Potentially he seemed the most vivid champion, outside of Dempsey, in the big parade. A man's man, a ladies' man and a delight to the children.

But within a few weeks after ascendancy to the title, enthusiasm began to cool out. Many believe this was because of a swing of sympathy for the lumbering giant he dethroned. Carnera seemed such a pathetic and bewildered brobdignagian in the news reels.

If Baer had knocked out a more formidable champion, his lustre would have been more enduring. Or so it was believed. Anyway Baer went off on a not so fortunate personal appearance tour and to Hollywood where the usual lionizing was not so stressed.

Just now he is in a position to make a come back in popularity. A roaring fight with a more aggressive challenger, plus a certain personal charm he possesses, would do the trick. But he must fight and not wait too long.

On the block of Grand Street running off the Bowery is a row of brightly lit bridal shops, open late at night, with window displays of wax models in long white veils, bouquets of roses and other accessories of the trousseau. Before the windows usually are groups of bright eyed, red cheeked Ghetto girls, gazing and likely dreaming of the happiness to come.

That the public has not lost interest in the once famous Gibson girl was evidenced by the crowds who went to see a recent exhibition of C. D. Gibson's early experiments in black and white—"The Education of Mr. Pipp" series and the like. In recent years, Gibson turned to oil paintings which he spreads on canvas at his summer home at Dark Harbor, Maine. They are chiefly seafaring men of the old school.

Sinclair Lewis's wife, Dorothy Thompson, has become a foremost attraction on the lecture platform. So much so she cannot fulfill half the engagements offered. Her expulsion in Germany had much to do with the demand, plus the fact she is an accomplished speaker. She has been Town Hall's boxoffice ace.

It's been months now since Broadway glimpsed one of its most joyous spirits, Lillian Lorraine. For a time the beauty of the Midnight Frolic, with a faint sprinkle of gray, but still retaining her pulchritude, would be seen at intervals, but this became increasingly infrequent and rarely now is she seen. She lives quietly now in an apartment not far from the dazle that once knew her so well.

Al Smith is one of the few celebrities who likes to sit in a stage box at the theatre—at least at the remaining playhouses where boxes have not been filled in with orchestra chairs. When he goes playgoing it is usually a family affair, surrounded by his wife and younger members of his tribe. At intermission, his box is like a star's dressing room after a premiere, with friends and admirers crowding to shake hands. Al has no equal in New York for attracting the public eye in public—at the theatre, cafe, ball game or where not. And it's seldom he can get away without one of his happy little speeches.

De Wolf Hopper, up so far in the 70's he's brushing the octaves, is running Will Rogers close second as the stage's most accomplished flying man. His headquarters these days is Chicago and he flies to Kansas City and back every Sunday for a broadcast. Also there is a weekly air journey to New York and every several weeks to the coast. Furthermore, once in the plane, he drops all worries and goes off into a sound snooze. It's all dandy, but at Hopper's age I have a feeling I'd stick to my horse, Graham!

The millennium is not here but it may be only a hop skip in the offing. Tonight at 8:18 a taxi driver in front of the Henry Miller theatre had exactly the right change.

Today

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane

THE SHORTEST day of the year, last Saturday, is past, with less than ten hours of sunlight, the longer, summer days are ahead. "That alone should encourage the crew," as the bellman remarked, in "The Hunting of the Shark."

Also we are in the last week of 1934, year of troubles and experiments. Those that mean to do something in the way of reform, harder work, greater concentration, will do well to begin NOW. What you cannot begin now, you will not begin next year.

CHEERFUL OPTIMISTS telling you that conditions are getting better, remind you of Meyer Hecht's benevolent friend who told each tuberculous patient "you are coughing better, this morning."

We are all "coughing" a little better. It has been the best, most freely spending Christmas season since the depression began. Merchants testify to that. The season of grand opera opened in New York with every seat sold, and a demand for seats non-existent.

IN THE row of seats where pearl necklaces and diamond "dog collars" are worn, and in the top seats, where you see little because the opera was built for the rich, all faces reflected the hope that the fine march in Aida, chosen to open the season, was a march toward prosperity.

Perhaps prosperity is coming back, as pessimists say IN SPITE of all that has been done, because prosperity always DOES come back. More probably those are right who say, "The Lord helps those that help themselves," and credit is due to the new era that has helped itself, to new ideas and public money to carry them out.

MR. HULL, able secretary of state, wants freer trade with foreign countries. Those that shut their markets to the outside world are like "animals which burrow in the ground," says Mr. Hull. That might be true, without proving that protection is unwise.

Animals burrowing in the ground, prairie dogs, etc., would regret it if they came to the surface and sat around inviting coyotes to eat them. Early Christians burrowing in the catacombs were better off than they would have been on the surface, thrown to the lions.

It is better for this country to burrow under protection than be thrown to the lions of free competition of labor and manufacturing.

IF WE had free trade with Japan, for instance, fond as we are of our Japanese brothers, there would be manufactured, by American labor, not a bicycle, electric light bulb, or any one of a hundred other articles in common use.

Japan can now sell us well-made bicycles to retail at about three dollars, pleasant for the purchaser and for Japan, less pleasant for millions of American workers and thousands of manufacturers. Free trade would make them idle.

What applies to Japan, applies also to Germany and other countries. Americans that make their money in America, or inherit it here, should spend it for goods made here by American workers and THE LAW SHOULD SEE TO IT.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

A FRIEND ASKED me recently if diabetes is increasingly common. It is true that the number of cases of diabetes discovered is increasing and there is a corresponding increase in the number of reported fatal cases from this disease. But these facts are not as alarming as they might seem.

We must take into consideration that today more persons receive regular and thorough physical examinations. Because of these and the improved facilities, the disease is recognized more readily than in former years. This accounts for the apparent increase in the percentage of diabetes cases.

A recent bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company refers to the increase in number of diabetes as accounted for in some measure by marked social improvement in the past generation. With increased wages people have been able to enjoy more of the "comforts" of life, including the general and liberal use of food. Then again, increased use of machinery has caused a turn from manual to technical labor for many. This is the case not only in industry but in the home.

New Mode of Living
All these things have resulted in a decided change from the old time mode of living. It may well be that these changed conditions of modern life make man more susceptible to diabetes. I believe, too, that a great many of the dangerous complications of diabetes can be traced to negligence on the part of the diabetic sufferer.

The amazing progress made in the treatment of diabetes within the past two decades is one of the triumphs of medicine. With the discovery of insulin and subsequent developments in the treatment of diabetes, the disease can be controlled.

But many persons erroneously assume that the disease is curable. This is not true. Diabetes is due to a condition which is really incurable, but its effects can be overcome by the administration of insulin.

Of course, in certain mild cases insulin is unnecessary. If dietary precautions are taken the sufferer is relieved of the annoying symptoms and enjoys good health. With care the average expectations of life will be realized.

Know the Symptoms
All persons, especially elderly individuals, should be familiar with the signs of this disturbance. Complications can only be avoided if the disease is recognized in its early stages and proper measures are taken at the right time. Neglected diabetes becomes a serious and dangerous ailment.

Excessive thirst and hunger, passage of increased quantities of urine, together with loss of weight and strength, should arouse suspicion of diabetes. Persistent itching of the skin is a sign that should never be overlooked. Occasionally a person may be suffering from diabetes yet have no unusual symptoms. It is for this reason that routine examination of the urine should be made at least once a year and more frequently if suspicious symptoms are present.

"BEACH BEAUTY" by ARTHUR SHUMWAY

CHAPTER XXVIII

"You're hating me," Harrow said. "I'm sorry."

"Being sorry doesn't help it if you're going to do a thing like that. You may be innocent. But I'm not, Mr. Harrow. But I'm not going to say what's on my mind. There have been moments when I've liked you very much, and when I was utterly bewitched by your conduct. What all this mysterious business of people hating you is I've no idea. I don't know whether you're in the wrong or in the right, but I possibly see—even if it might be suspicious—what Pete Ryan has to do with it." And then he added:

"You must know, I'll tell you. When I went to see Pete and I asked him about it. He said he had come back here because he loved and jealous and that's why he was here. He was the prowl-my house that first night. I'm not going to see me, or to look at anyone—silly as that may sound when we came up in the way he hid in the bushes. They tried to slip away without being seen. But it just happens that he and I told you: As for the man you shot at the night, he never carried a gun in his life as far as I know. What could he have been going to do anyway? And now if you're going to treat him the way you are, I'm absolutely through. I'm going to find him and tell him what you have in mind. And go back to New Orleans after that. And not that it makes any difference to you, but I'll not go on a cruise. Now, I'm sorry, but the way I feel about it. As I've been frank."

"Now, listen patiently, no more visible on his face. When he finished, he said:

"You have been frank. Now, I say something: I've no doubt of your worth. You may think I'm a fool, but I can assure you that my affairs are always legitimate. But I learned long ago that action and unemotional thinking is the only formula for dealing with scoundrels who are outside the law. It may seem that I'm unnecessarily hard, a little bit of a little cruel, perhaps. Very true, the life I've led hasn't been as easy as yours. I've fought for it. I've got and I've had to fight it. When you get into such a position as mine you're in danger. You know that? And when you had the experience I've had, if you've a temperamental like you'd rather handle your own affairs as much as possible."

"Now, to me Pete Ryan isn't as much that." He held up his thumb forefinger, measuring an imaginary fractional object. "But I want you to understand that I'm going to clear something up and it seems to have any part in it. I want to be a worthy boy working my way up in the world as far as I am concerned. He becomes an annoyance, just as a mosquito or a fly is an annoyance, or possibly a more dangerous one, like a rattler. And it's time then I come to do something about it."

"Very well," Kay said. She stood and walked in to pack her case. For she had made up her mind, she could be as cold and as hard as she was sure, as this cynical, apparently ruthless man from the world of hard-boiled power. She packed and left the boat without speaking to anyone. She had her bags over to Beach and found a taxi. Arriving at her room, she felt strange. She somehow alienated from this house. It was part of a past life she was digging up ghoulishly and seemed.

When she went in, went to her room and began rearranging things she had had there before the Commander III nosed up to the boat a short time ago. This was spite or pique, she told herself, but after all it was for her. She was leaving Earl Harrow in his circle entirely—much as she hated to, in some ways, as Harrow. This would be a thing to tell her grandchildren. She decided with faint smile, the country's most glamorous newspaper personalities had been falling into her life aboard a magnificent white yacht here in her home town; he had sought her, not she after him; he had promised vaguely to carry her in his own world; and this was what had happened. She had seen a hard man—competent, ruthless, for all his manner and background, she could not think of him without regret for what their ship might have meant. It was easy to pluck your mind from a dream and set it down flat on the earth; nor was Harrow a man to dislike, no matter how much you wanted to. Kay agreed, trying to change the line of her thoughts, and remembering that by tomorrow maybe Commander would not be lying against the blue of the river, green of the shore to mock her.

Then it occurred to her that she might even at the moment be in danger from Harrow. She went downstairs and went to the phone, intending to call the police, whom she knew well to assure him that whatever charge might be brought against Pete would be groundless and conceived in malice. Why she thought, though, was hard to tell. She couldn't admit to herself that she was respecting Harrow's wish to bring the police into his affairs.

She hurried out and mounted her car. She found Pete at home, used to see her.

"You said," you'd better get out of town."

Pete laughed. "I know, I know. Harrow was here. He tried in his nice polite way to let me know that if I let my shadow fall on his path there might be a hole in it. It's the balcony, Kay. Somebody's scared him and he's suspicious of everybody. He just picked on me because he knows how I feel about you. His conscience probably."

"It's serious, Pete. Don't joke about it. He's going to get you."

"Don't be silly. He's trying to scare me because he thinks I might bother him about you."

"No, you're wrong," she insisted desperately. "Try to understand me, Pete. I've left the yacht; I'm through with him."

Pete cocked his head and studied her with surprise.

"She nodded vigorously. 'I have' he insisted. 'But he's after you. He doesn't mean to do you any harm, but he's going to have you thrown in jail until he's well out of town. He thinks you're partly responsible for this plot against him or whatever it is. Don't you see?'"

"I'm afraid I don't," Pete admitted quietly. "What could he have me thrown in jail for? Breathing in the same town with him?"

"That's just it. For nothing. He's going to make one charge against you, or have somebody make one. I don't know. All I know is that he's going to do it, merely because he's been annoyed so much by these men, whoever they are, and you're the only one he suspects that he can deal with."

"So that's it?" Pete began to smile, a rather hard unpleasant smile that was not natural for the Pete whom Kay had known.

"Pete—why don't you go back to New Orleans tonight? Or anywhere; only don't stay here and let him do that. Even if you'd do nothing, being in jail doesn't help your reputation. It might cost you your job."

Pete nodded. "That's so," he agreed.

"Go back to New Orleans, Pete," she pleaded.

"What are you going to do?" he asked quickly.

"Get another job here if I can—and look for one in Jacksonville. I can't. I can always join mother, and Bud up in the mountains, but first I want to establish myself if I can so as to help her rather than hinder her."

Pete seized one of her hands. "I'm going back to New Orleans—down to Guatemala," he said. "I'm going tonight. I can wait in New Orleans until they're ready for me. There's no danger of it's falling through; it's just been delayed, that's all."

"Good, Pete, good! That's the only sensible—"

He cut in before she had finished.

"And you're going with me!"

Kay stared at him with sudden surprise.

"You are," he insisted, drawing her close to him with a violent strength. "We'll be married and you'll come with me."

"But—"

"But nothing. You can say you don't care enough about me. All right, I'll take my chances on that. A couple of weeks ago I believed you. Now I don't. Else why all this rescue work in my behalf? Maybe you aren't in love with me the way I am with you, but you care enough about me to risk your own position here and now you've thrown up your chances with Harrow—whatever they were—all really because of me. Don't think I'm not flattered, because I am. And you're coming with me—to-night!"

"But—Pete—" Kay said, trying to find her voice. "I mean—we can't. Even if I wanted to. We can't. Don't you see?"

"Why can't we?"

"They wouldn't let you take me. Your company, I mean."

"Oh, yes they would."

"But there might not be any place down there for me to live."

"We'd see that there was. There are plenty of American women living down there with their husbands."

"Oh, Pete—please," Kay shook her head dazedly.

"I know this seems drastic and sudden and all that, but it's the thing to do. I've never played many hunches but they've usually been right. And even if you didn't fall madly in love with me at first or anything like that I'd be the happiest man in the world, having you along and it would be the best thing for both of us."

"How do you know we could afford it? Oh, let's don't even start to think about it; it's all so impossible."

"Of course we could afford it. Living's dirt cheap down there."

"We might be doing something. One of the men was telling me—we'd be sorry for all our lives."

Pete took both her hands and looked her squarely in the eye. "I wouldn't be," he said. "If I didn't do it I'd be sorry all my life. But if you wanted me to let you go, I would, and you'd never regret having tried it with me. I promise you that."

Kay drew back from Pete and stared at the floor, as if hoping it would rise suddenly and speak, to answer the hundreds of questions in her mind. She was impulsive. She knew it now, for she had been playing with this romantic idea of Pete's against all her good judgment and sense of duty. She had been impulsive, for that matter, when she had accepted Harrow's offer of a job, again when she had decided to live on the yacht, and to make the cruise; and once more only a few hours ago when she had seized her belongings and marched down the plank to abandon him and her dreams in that direction definitely and entirely. But was she impulsive enough to do this thing? She wondered, too, about that.

"Pete," she said, "let's calm down. We can't talk of this standing here with you holding me. Let's sit down and look at it practically. It's so sudden and wild a notion that it's made us both a little drunk—you for one reason, me for another. Please?"

Pete released her and offered her a chair on the porch, then sat on the rail and lit his pipe, drawing upon it deeply as if for the calmness that she asked of him.

Kay studied him quietly, seeking a detachment and a clarity of vision. He was so strong, so honest, so competent in his own way, a quiet deep way different from Harrow's competence of crisp orders, quick bold decisions and hard courage. He was young, more nearly her own age—but why, why was she thinking of him in comparison with Harrow?

Pete began to speak again, more calmly now, judiciously almost, looking directly at her, pausing now and then to puff on his pipe.

"I can't look at it any other way, Kay. I'm not running away from Harrow because I'm afraid of anything he'd do. My conscience is perfectly clear. Do you understand that? Yet I have sense enough to know that if I stay there may be an awkward situation. So what have I done? You've asked me to look at it calmly; that's what I'm doing. I've decided to do the simplest, most practical thing; to go, since I've been going to anyway within a short time. And I've asked you to come with me because your life and mine are mixed together permanently. I'm sure. You've nothing here any more. You do like me a lot or you wouldn't have been so concerned about me. All right, then. Come along, try me out. I won't tire of you. You know that. And if you tire of me, what are we doing, after all, that hasn't been done before? People elope every day. People take risks, chances, and laugh at consequences. It's been this way since the old days when maidens slid down the drawbridge chains and galloped away with the young bird from the neighboring castle. We're young, we're healthy, we've nothing to lose."

Kay reached for Pete's arm, took it, held to it. "I—I can't seem to think, Pete," she said.

Pete slid off the rail and put his arms around her.

"Then, don't try," he said. "Leave it to me."

Smart Clothes To Augment The Winter Vacationist's Wardrobe

By MARIE MAROT

HERE IT is again, that urge to get away from it all, preferably by going south. And so, we trek in the path of the sun, forgetting drear, drab days at home. And not the least part of the delight is in assembling a southern wardrobe, augmenting some of last year's really good knitted things with the new and lovely merchandise that the shops are now showing. The seated figure wears a white novelty crepe dress with green suede belt, wooden clip and hat to match the frock. The suit is in beige wool, and the topcoat has revers of beaver. Beige and brown is a most important color combination that should be much seen in the spring. The smart traveling coat is in light pepper and salt tweed flecked with scarlet and chartreuse. The hat is of matching fabric.

Below: A dress of white novelty crepe, hat to match. Center: A suit and top coat in beige wool. The top coat has revers of beaver.

Here is a smart traveling outfit. The coat and the skirt are in light pepper and salt tweed. The hat, with its perky feather, is of matching fabric.

Today's Pattern

A SMART COAT FOR SCHOOL OR SUNDAYS

Pattern 2094

Polly, here, feels as though the world were particularly bright these days! For her mother has just made her this adorable coatfrock smart enough to send any little girl's spirits soaring sky high even without those square patch pockets which make her strike such a swagger pose. It has comfortably full sleeves that end in neat little cuffs—or if you prefer short sleeves for your little girl, the pattern indicates just how to make them. The belt ties in a perky little bow at the back and the cunning Peter Pan collar is "just right" for schoolgirl flattery. And to add a gay touch tie a right bow at the throat, as in the small sketch to the right.

Pattern 2094 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 3 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Send for your copy of the ANNE ADAMS WINTER FASHION BOOK! Crowded with exclusive patterns for the child, the young girl and the matron. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS BUT WHEN ORDERED WITH AN ANNE ADAMS PATTERN IT IS ONLY TEN CENTS. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS FOR BOTH.

Address orders to Salem News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

OHIO TEACHERS MEETING OPENS

More Than 3,000 Expected at 3-Day Columbus Session

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Dec. 26.—More than 3,000 teachers were expected here for the three day session of the Ohio Education association which opened today.

For the first time in recent years, officials of the association said, financial problems will not be the convention's dominating theme. J. G. Collicott, president of the association and superintendent of schools, said the teacher, encouraged by revenue to be derived from the emergency tax program, will devote a major share of the meetings to discussion of modern educational trends.

The association announced today that Walton B. Bliss of Columbus, former editor of Ohio Schools, will succeed Frank E. Reynolds as secretary-treasurer of the organization, Jan. 1.

Bliss' post as editor of the school magazine will be filled by H. H. Bell.

Alliance Man Candidate

B. F. Stanton, superintendent of Alliance schools, was considered one of the outstanding candidates to succeed Dr. Collicott, who was reported reluctant to accept a second term.

The all-Columbus senior high school chorus of 150 voices will sing at the general program tonight, at which Dr. W. E. Hocking of Harvard university, and state Senator Charles E. Hodges, of West Virginia will speak.

Speakers at the sessions of the administration department tomorrow include Dr. Frank Slutz of Dayton and Dr. L. O. Wright president of Baldwin-Wallace college.

Try the classifieds—a gold mine of value.

PAP'S DIARY

A third printing makes this available again. Dr. McMaster, Mt. Union College, calls it a "valuable source book for future historians," and expresses his "enthusiastic appreciation." It is Salem from 1846 to 1877, when Salem was making itself prominent and permanent.

Paul Waner, Pirates, Leads Batting Parade Of Southpaw Hurlers

Pittsburgh Star Returns To Top With a .362 Percentage; Season Figures Show 19 Players Who Hit .300 or Better

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—After six seasons as an also-ran in the National league batting races, Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates has returned to the top.

Since the six-year reign of Rogers Hornsby, as batting king was ended in 1926, left handers have forged to the front in six seasons out of nine. It was Waner who started the southpaw swing in 1927, when he compiled a .380 average. Frank O'Doul, Bill Terry and Chuck Klein carried on with Hornsby and Chick Hefey coming in with a pair of right handed triumphs, then "Big Poison" came back in 1934 with a mark of .362 in the official record released today.

The final figures for the season showed 29 players who hit .300 or better and of these 16 were southpaws and two were switch hitters as compared to eleven confirmed right handers.

Waner won the top post by eight percentage points from Terry, another outside swinger. Other leading regulars—players who took part in 75 or more games—were Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, Chicago, .338; Jim (Ripper) Collins, St. Louis, and Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, Pittsburgh, .333; Sam Leslie, Brooklyn, .332; Joe Moore, New York, .331; Ethun Allen, Philadelphia, .324; John Moore, Cincinnati, and Philadelphia, .320; and Harlan Pool, Cincinnati, .327. Cuyler and Allen are right hand hitters, while Collins can connect from either side.

Waner and Collins were the outstanding all-around hitters. The Pittsburgher made the high marks of 217 hits and 122 runs. Collins tied Mel Ott of New York for home run honors with 35 and collected 369 total bases on his hits.

Other individual leaders were: Jack Rothrock, St. Louis, 647 times at bat; Terry, 139 one-base hits; Cuyler and Allen 42 two-baggers each; Joe Medwick, St. Louis, 18 triples; Hughey Critz, New York, 22 sacrifices; John (Pepper) Martin, St. Louis, 23 stolen bases.

The champion St. Louis club dominated the club batting records with a .288 average, leading Pittsburgh by a point. The Cards led in total at bats, runs, hits, doubles, total bases and steals.

Wesleyan Star Says Football Not Tough

(By Associated Press)

DELAWARE, Dec. 25.—Football isn't the rough and tough sport it's cracked up to be, says Bob Soper, son of President Edmund D. Soper of Ohio Wesleyan university. Soper played three seasons of varsity football at Ohio Wesleyan, winning a letter each year. He also has his flash numerals. He got to that he played the prep school in Georgia, and won all-Ohio prep school honors in that section of the south. He bases his statement that football isn't so tough on the fact that he has never suffered any broken bones, torn ligaments or any of the other banes of a gridder's career.

DUANE PURVIS INJURES KNEE

Scrimmage Mishap May Keep Purdue Star Out of East-West Game

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—A knee injury to Duane Purvis, star Purdue halfback, so severe he is not expected to be able to play, today wrecked the east's carefully laid plans for the New Year's day charity football game here against the west.

Purvis was hurt in scrimmage yesterday afternoon. Tackled while carrying the ball on an end run, Purvis was unable to rise. X-ray photographs showed the knee cartilage and tendons were torn and the muscles badly bruised. Andy Kerr of Colgate and Dick Hanley, retiring Northwestern mentor, coaches of the east team, had banked heavily on Purvis who was assigned the kicking role. It is expected Ed Brominski of Columbia will be shifted to right halfback as a result of the injury to Purvis.

While the east suffered this unfortunate Christmas mishap, the west, under the direction of Coaches Orin Hollingberry of Washington State and Percy Lacey of Denver, worked principally on offensive tactics at the Stanford university practice field.

Stanford's Other Half Leaves For Pasadena Tonight

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 26.—After a final informal workout this afternoon, Stanford's football squad—what there is left of it on the "farm"—will head south tonight for Pasadena and the New Year's day Rose Bowl game with the University of California.

Coach C. E. "Tiny" Thornhill planned to hold only a brief practice with the players who remained here over Christmas. About half of the squad, most of whom lived in southern California, left the campus the first of the week.

The entire squad will hold two practices tomorrow. The players were given a rest on the Christmas day, but Bob Reynolds, all-American tackle, and "Jim" Monk Moscrip, star end, held a two-man practice of their own for over an hour.

Makers of Sports History During 1934

The Deans, "Duffy" and "Dizzy," pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a world championship. Each won two games of the world series. "Dizzy" (Jerome to the Mrs.) was voted the most valuable player of 1934.

California's varsity won again at Poughkeepsie. Washington and Navy trailed the Golden Bears to the finish line in the intercollegiate regatta.

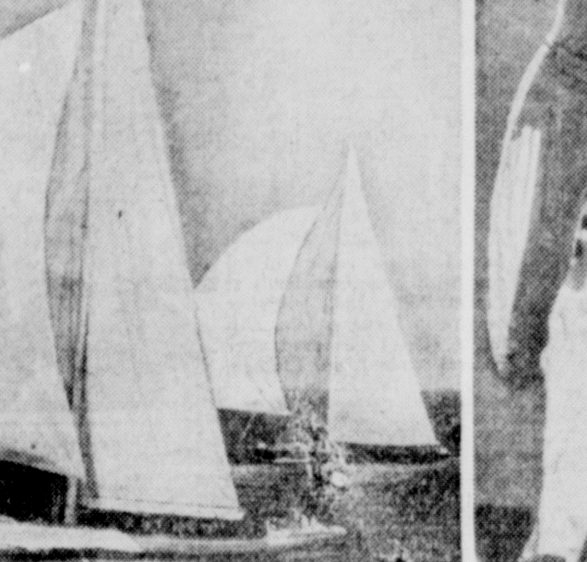

"Wild Bill" Cummings, a local boy, made good by winning the 500-mile Memorial Day auto race at the Indianapolis Speedway, setting a new track record of 104.565 m.p.h.

Cavalade, English-bred champion of the turf. Owned by Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan, the colt won the Kentucky Derby and other big events and earned $111,235, making him the biggest money winner of the year.

Max Baer became heavyweight champion of the world by knocking out Primo Carnera in the 11th round of their fight at New York.

Johnny Layton became world's three-cushion billiard champion by defeating Welker Cochran in title match.

Katherine Rawls, 17-year-old Miami Beach, Fla., mist swept through all competition to win Mermaid Queen title in diving and swimming.

Glenn Cunningham, former University of Kansas miler, set a new world record for distance in 4:06.7 performance at Princeton.

Fred Perry, of England, became undisputed king of tennis by winning Wimbledon title, and American, French and Australian national crowns.

Racing Notes

(By Associated Press)

ARCADIA, Calif., Dec. 26.—The heritage of lucky Baldwin appeared today to have been handed down to horse racing in southern California.

On a small rancho where Elias J. Baldwin once successfully raised and raced thoroughbreds more than 25 years ago, the turf sport returned yesterday in all its glory.

Thirty-nine thousand persons wildly headed the revival and with it the victory of High Glee, C. V. Whitney's speedy filly in the $5,000 Christmas stakes. They put $239,096 through the parimutuel machines for the eight races.

High Glee won with a stirring stretch run, leading Chiconey, past the finish by a length and a half. Rickulus was third, another length and a half behind. The time of 1:37 was fast for the mile.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26.—Rip Van Winkle, owned by the Lone Star Stable, came from behind today to win the mile and a sixteenth Christmas handicap, $1,000 added, at the fair grounds race track.

Rip Van Winkle, with Jockey Alcee Richards up, passed Bibbie's choice to score by a length. Faulstich was third. The time was 1:43 1-4. Rip paid $92.00 to win on $2 tickets.

Tips On Basketball

By Leon W. Schloss, Former Penn State Coach

By LEON W. SCHLOSS
Sports Writer
This is the ninth article of a continuous series.

The man-for-man defense, employing the shift to parry blocks by the enemy, is used the nation over by professional fives. It is the system I learned, liked best, and have played and coached throughout my court experience.

There doubtless is much to be said in favor of the zone defense but I'll leave it to experts of that type of play to say. I don't like it to be frank—as well as the man-for-man and believe the latter achieves greater results.

Naturally I have reasons with which to substantiate my opinion. In the first place the man-for-man is more simple than zone and simplicity is synonymous with success in things athletic as far as I am concerned.

In the second place, the zone defense functions as a unit. Numerous player replacements are almost bound to disrupt to some extent its efficiency.

To avoid situations of this kind a coach using zone defense, if he had, say, ten men on his squad, would have to train over a hundred different combinations to work together. The "man-for-man" coach can eliminate this toilsome task entirely, for each man is trained individually. When he goes into the game, he has his work to do. It is the same work that each of his teammates must perform. There is no interdependence of man upon man.

When you remove a man from a team playing zone, you imperil the whole structure. When you substitute for a player on a man-for-man outfit, it is a matter of replacing one brick in a wall with another and supposedly more perfect brick.

There are other reasons. On the other hand, the zone defense coach undoubtedly has many good reasons for his employment of that system. He will tell you, for instance, that the zone system is less rigorous on his players—that he stands less chance of being devastated by injuries.

Well, as I said in my first article, basketball is a hard game, one requiring endurance. Now I'll add that the player with endurance stands the better chance of achieving genuine success. Why, then, use a system that tends to discourage development of endurance, as the zone defense doubtless does?

Well, friend, you have one man on the other side to guard. You must in addition score more points than he does. No well-versed modern coach should criticize you if you outscore your opponent by even as small a margin as one point, if you do it consistently, game after game. Because if every man can hold up his end in that way, the result can easily be foreseen.

The perfectly played basketball game, to me, is the one in which every player on one team outscores his individual opponent, regardless of the margin. A game like that proves that each player has done his part, shouldered his burden, and proves, ipso facto, that the winning team has played as a team, cohesively, with no attempt at grandstand play by any of its members.

Sugar Bowl Teams Ease Off Practice To Avoid Injuries

(By Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26.—Tulane and Temple began tapering off today for their Sugar Bowl intercollegiate football fray here New Year's day.

Tulane's coach, Ted Cox, planned to make today's workout a little lighter and shorter.

In Baton Rouge Coach "Pop" Warner cut the Owls' practice shorter.

Both teams have done enough hard work, the coaches feel, and they don't want to risk injuries.

Bargains are plentiful. The ads will tell you where.

A good preliminary will be an added attraction, according to J. Kelly, Memorial manager. The game will be at 8:30 p. m.

Just Oddities

DELAWARE, Dec. 26.—Bob Zupke, University of Illinois football coach, never won his letter in college football, it was disclosed recently in a chapel address at Ohio Wesleyan university by Dr. Ben A. Ameson, head of the department of political science.

Speaking at the annual Phi Beta Kappa recognition day, Dr. Ameson held up Zupke as the type of man after whom students might pattern themselves.

"At Wisconsin, where Zupke was a student, he tried for four years to make the football team, but when his senior season ended he was still a bench warmer," Dr. Ameson said.

"Even that didn't dampen his indomitable spirit. He went on to coach successfully at Muskegon, Mich., and Oak Park, Ill., high schools, finally winding up at Illinois where his success is known to all."

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—If anyone should ask Wally Kilrea about it today, he probably would hear that there wasn't anything particularly merry about Christmas.

Kilrea, just recalled from the Detroit Olympics to the parent team, the Red Wings of the National Hockey league, committed a costly misplay last night and as a result his team lost a 2 to 1 decision to Chicago's Blackhawks.

The play was one which is not uncommon in hockey but a heart breaker under such circumstances. In the first period Wally took the puck away from Tommy Cook. Trying to clear, he slammed the disc into Norm Smith into his own net. The rest of the game was about even, with Detroit holding a slight edge. Howie Morenz caught the Kings flat footed down the ice on a third period gang play and netted a second Chicago goal while net guardian Lorne Chabot turned aside every Red Wing shot until the final minute, when Herb Lewis tallied.

PHILADELPHIA.—Shortly after losing the football game to the Columbia Lions, the University of Pennsylvania football team lost its little dachshund mascot. The animal, named Mane, escaped from his owner William Bishop and was killed by an automobile.

Alabama To "Go Hollywood" Today And Attend Luncheon

Coach Frank Thomas Takes 'Bama Boys On Jaunt; Hospital List Discarded As Whatley and Angelich Recover

(By Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 26.—Alabama's impressive herd of red elephants, here to meet Stanford in the Rose Bowl football classic New Year's day, were to "go Hollywood" for a short time today.

They were boked to visit a motion picture studio, see and be seen at a luncheon, after which they were to return to their chores behind the barred and bolted gates at Occidental college.

Coach Frank Thomas said that the morale of the boys is "fine," and added that an occasional phill, like today's ought to help preserve it.

Injuries Disappear

The last vestige of a hospital list had disappeared from the squad, with the return of Big Jim Whatley, left tackle, and Jimmy Angelich, Whatley's threatened attack of appendicitis appeared to have left him, and Angelich, who was slowed down slightly by an ankle injury in the opening day's drill, was covering the ground with customary form.

Thus far, the 'Bama boys have been ironing out the muscle-kinks in kicking and passing drills, with light dummy scrimmages, designed to polish their offense and to perfect a specially-planned defense. Although Coach Thomas would not commit himself, it was believed the boys were in for a heavy scrimmage this afternoon.

The new defense was reportedly aimed especially at Stanford's all-permit fees for use in its enforcement work, permit the department to withhold their share of permit fees from any political subdivision that fails to cooperate in its enforcement, abolish the $1 a gallon tax on liquor, and remove the 3 per cent sales tax on sales of spirituous liquors by the glass.

The governor said he concurred in Hughes' recommendation for abolishment of the $1 a gallon tax, the revenues from which Hughes said he felt certain would be made up by increased sales of liquor.
He said he would ask that the legislature make drink sales of liquor exempt from the sales tax.

Ohio U. Journalism Head Injured, Wife Killed In Accident

(By Associated Press)

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 26.—George Starr Lasher, head of the department of journalism at Ohio university and national president of Theta Chi, injured seriously in an automobile accident in which his wife was killed, was reported as "resting comfortably."
Lasher, his wife and two young daughters were en route to a national convention of Theta Chi at Miami when their car and one allegedly driven by a man listed as Carl Martin of Merritt, Fla., collided.

Martin was arrested at Titusville in connection with the crash and was charged by Chief of Police W. V. Maxwell with driving while intoxicated. Martin also was injured slightly in the wreck as were the two Lasher children, 12 and 12, and Dorothy, 6. The crash occurred near Cocoa yesterday. Mrs. Lasher died in a hospital here shortly after the wreck.

Discuss Sales Tax

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26.—Charles H. Lake, superintendent of Cleveland schools announced he would go to Columbus today to confer with Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education and Carlton S. Dargusch, state tax commissioner, to determine whether sales tax collections might not be started on a makeshift basis, Jan. 1.
He postulated that collections will be postponed to Feb. 1, means that Cuyahoga county will be deprived of nearly $625,000, Lake said.

Firemen Save Dinner

CINCINNATI, Dec. 26.—Firemen, called to the home of Mrs. Minnie Myder, to quench a kitchen blaze, first attended to a turkey dinner.
The fire started when heat from the oven in which the turkey was cooking ignited a wall. The rest of the dinner, in preparation was on a nearby table. Wrapping it in a tarpaulin, the flame fighters carried it to safety, then "rescued" the gobble.

15 ARE KILLED IN RAIL CRASH

Score More Injured When Trains Collide Near Hamilton, Ont.

from the other coaches." A third coach of the excursion train was thrown upon its end, dangerously near a 150 foot bluff set on steep S'ene.
The scene of the disaster is a rugged section of country. The midway line runs along the edge of the Dundas valley, high over the quiet little town. Dundas station itself is set on the side of the precipitous slope. The drop is almost sheer.

Injured started coming into Hamilton shortly after 11 p. m. about two hours after the crash. They came at first in ones and twos and were taken to the Hamilton General hospital.

Then a special train bearing injured arrived at the station on Stuart street and the station took on the appearance of a first aid clearing station during the World War.

The wounded, many moaning with pain and shock, were taken to the general hospital. The stretchers entered the institution in quick succession.

All the internes in the hospital went to work. All the nurses went on duty. Various private practitioners left their homes in the city to volunteer their services.

Relatives and friends were kept to the corridors. They stood there quietly, in almost funeral calm.

The first case to arrive at the hospital was Mrs. Hilda Parker of Toronto. Her uncle, William Parker, superintendent of the Hamilton Street Railway, arrived shortly afterward. Later, it was discovered that Mrs. Parker's 15-year-old daughter, was among the dead.

Issues Statement

W. A. Kingsland, vice president and general manager, central region, Canadian National Railways, issued the following statement:
"At 9:21 o'clock last night, train No. 16 enroute from Detroit to Toronto, and points east, ran into the rear end of a passenger extra enroute from London to Toronto, at Dundas siding, resulting in three cars on the rear of the passenger extra being badly damaged. x x x
"Immediately word of the accident was received, General Superintendent T. C. Hudson at once ordered a special hospital train with doctors and nurses and ambulances were also dispatched to the scene. The injured were immediately conveyed to the general hospital at Hamilton."

"The cause of the accident was reported as being an open switch."

The stationary train was shoved along the tracks for several hundred feet in the collision.

At the point where the crash occurred the railway line skirts the escarpment of the Dundas valley.

Brakes Too Late
The engineer of the second train threw on his brakes when he saw the standing train on the siding, but it was too late to do more than slow down the impetus of the speeding train.

The rear coach of the first train was hurled upon the top of the locomotive of the express, its wood-work demolished.

A dozen men, using axes by torchlight, worked for two hours before they could remove a man who was pinned underneath the rear of the car.

He was partly conscious when taken from the wreckage, his face blackened by cinders and burns, his clothing torn to ribbons and his hands crushed.

Doctors, who were rushed to the scene from Hamilton and other nearby points, gave him stimulants.

Donald McFarlane of Hamilton, controlled of the city, who was one of the first to arrive on the scene, said eight bodies lay in one coach while other in the second coach of the holiday special, were hidden from sight. The two cars had been partially telescoped.

Football Captain Dies In "Mistake"

(By Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 26.—Esler Lee Gilpin, Jr., captain of the football team at McKinley High school, St. Louis, Mo., for the last two years, is dead today of pistol bullet wounds—the victim of what friends here said was a "great mistake."

Police Captain Bernard Young said officers reported that Gilpin, 19-years old and left tackle on the McKinley team, was found fatally wounded yesterday in the home of O. C. Wood, only two doors from his own home. Wood swore out a warrant against the youth shortly after he was shot, charging him with burglary.

Before Gilpin died yesterday officers said he told them that he and Wood were close friends and begged that Wood not be blamed. No action was taken immediately against Wood.

Cantor, Erstwhile Roman Scandal, Now Hunts Treasure Among the Pyramids

Eddie Cantor, banjo-eyed clown who last year evaded among charlatans and liars in the Rome of the Caesars, in "Roman Scandals," this season invades the land of the camels and the Pyramids in "Kid Millions," now playing at the State theater. It opened yesterday and runs today and Thursday.

The comedians fifth annual series musical extravaganza for Samuel Goldwyn introduces him as a big sheep of the Brooklyn waterfront. He inherits a fortune in buried treasure and travels to Egypt to claim it, with Ann Sothern, Ethel Merman, George Murphy, and Block and Sully lending romance, "botche," and hilarity to the proceedings.

and fire in a New Port, R. I. tenement, and three others were injured in a fire which destroyed their home at Belding, Mich.

Gunplay was responsible for several deaths. A South Carolina farmer was accidentally killed by a shotgun in the hands of his fifteen-year-old daughter. A prowler was shot to death in Chicago. Rex Pyle, owner of a jewelry store in Chicago was shot and killed in the home of Fred Feiner. An 11-year-old boy was accidentally killed at Shreveport, La., by a rifle he received for a Christmas gift.

Louisiana also reported a fatal stabbing. One man was shot to death at Evans, Ky. Alabama gun fights accounted for three deaths. A bank robber was slain in Nebraska. Fatal hunting accidents were reported from Mississippi and Missouri.

More than a dozen persons choose Christmas to end their lives. Discovery of the body of Mrs. Lovetta Wilson, in a thicket at Port Jefferson, N. Y., and the death of Irene Katz, six months old, who was strangled to death in his Little Rock, Ark. home when his sleeping coat twisted about his neck, were among the tragedies reported.

Drownings Listed

Sylvia Stredman, 18, of Preston, Ida., was drowned when her car skidded on an icy highway and overturned in a shallow stream. Two young girls were drowned when they broke through the ice on the Blue River near Crete, Neb. Leroy Maple, 17, of Brownsville, Pa., a farmer boy, gave his own life in saving two boys from drowning while skating. Two persons were drowned in Ohio.

Lad Dies Bravely Not Wanting To Spoil Christmas

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26.—Twelve-year-old Raymond Boschert looked up wistfully from his bed at DePaul hospital when his doctor came to visit him Christmas eve.
Raymond's condition wasn't quite as good as it had been the day before.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boschert, had placed him in the hospital Dec. 19, suffering from a rare ailment, an obstruction of the upper intestinal tract.

He had undergone an operation Friday.

"Aw, Doc, don't try to fool me," Raymond said, regarding the doctor fixedly with friendly blue eyes that looked out from a wan, boyish countenance.

"I'm going to die and you know I'm going to die."

"Now Ray," began the doctor trying to cheer him.

"I'm not afraid to die," Ray interrupted. "It's because of my mother that I hate it. She has been so good to me. It will ruin her Christmas—it will spoil Christmas for the whole family."

Ray died Christmas morning shortly before the time other children were setting up to see what Santa Claus had left them.

Engineer, Struck By Mail Bag, Dies

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26.—Carl Ludwig, 50, of Cleveland, the engineer for the Big Four lines, who came into Cleveland unconscious at the throttle in his cab Monday night and later died of a fractured skull was struck on the head by a mail bag accidentally. Coroner A. J. Pearce ruled today.

Coroner Pearce said the engineer apparently had been leaning too far out his window when the train passed the mail bag standard in the Berea yards and received a blow on the head. The bag was found on the ground near the standard.

The driving box of the engine in which Ludwig was riding was overheated. Coroner Pearce said he learned, after the engineer apparently was leaning out the window to look at it.

Seek Court Setting
LISBON, Dec. 26.—Whether or not the January grand jury will convene in the new courthouse will not be determined until later in the week, it was announced today by Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty. The jury for the January term is to go in session Jan. 7. In the event the clerk of courts office has not been re-located by that time, it is probable that the jury will use one of these three rooms.

DEATHS

THOMAS A. BURNS

Thomas A. Burns died at the home of a nephew, in Tiltonville, at 5 a. m. Tuesday. His wife preceded him in death, July 30, 1933, at Berlin Center, where they were former residents. No immediate relatives survive him, but he has several nieces and nephews in this vicinity.
